Relevance of the Thoughts of Netaji on his 125th Birth Anniversary:

An Interactive Discussion

To be held on 12th March, 2022

About the Seminar

Jogesh Chandra Chaudhuri Law College established in 1970 have since then taken much efforts to develop students into worthy citizens who believe in constitutional values and just social order. Netaji's 125th birth anniversary has provided the society with an apt opportunity to revisit his thoughts which is much necessary now as the world is trying to move on after being hit by the Covid-19 pandemic for last two years. The Jogesh Chandra Chaudhuri Law College has taken this very opportunity to organise this seminar to be enlightened by eminent personalities, academicians and students which the college believes would act like a forum to discuss the thoughts of our beloved Netaji to tackle and help the society to steer ahead from the pandemic created crisis.

Concept Note

Netaji's thoughts had taken a form about India's independence understanding the difficult efforts taken by others and their failure to gain independence. He was a patriot who was never eager for personal power or social elevation. He was authoritative and supported by his followers, though he was not obsessed for praise or power but it was rather independence for his adored nation for which he was willing to suffer for any length of time and sacrifice anything, even his status in politics and his life. Being one of the top Indian politicians he had a design for the social and economic reconstruction of India once freedom came. His thoughts were not only limited to the attainment of freedom but also to build a strong India ensuring its rightful place in the world order and hence deliberated on plans for the future too. This is again high time to ponder on the thoughts of Netaji to free the nation from the crisis that has occurred due to the Covid-19 pandemic.
